SECTION 1. DEFINITION OF EXTORTION UNDER HOBBS ACT.

Paragraph (2) of section 1951(b) of title 18, United States Code, (commonly known as the "Hobbs Act") is amended to read as follows:

"(2)(A) The term 'extortion' means the obtaining of property of another—

"(i) by threatening or placing another person in fear that any person will be subjected to bodily injury or kidnapping or that any property will be damaged; or

"(ii) under color of official right.

"(B) In a prosecution under subparagraph (A)(i) in which the threat or fear is based on conduct by an agent or member of a labor organization consisting of an act of bodily injury to a person or damage to property, the pendency, at the time of such conduct, of a labor dispute (as defined in section 2(9) of the National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. 152(9))) the outcome of which could result in the obtaining of employment benefits by the actor, does not constitute prima facie evidence that property was obtained 'by' such conduct."

S. 143. A bill to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to reduce special interest influence on elections, to increase competition in politics, to reduce campaign costs, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

COMPREHENSIVE CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM ACT

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, the 102d Congress is faced with many challenges, not the least of which is ensuring the credibility of this institution and the electoral process of our Nation.

To that end, I, along with the Republican leader, Senator DOLE, and Senators SIMPSON, PACKWOOD, COCHRAN, DOMENICI, MURKOWSKI, and ROTH, am introducing the Comprehensive Campaign Finance Reform Act. This bill, which 36 Senators cosponsored in the last Congress, is the most sweeping legislation ever put forth on this issue. It bans political action committees, cuts in half to $500 the contribution limit for out-of-State individuals, eliminates all soft money, protects union members from being forced to contribute to partisan political activities, provides a broadcast discount to reduce campaign costs, prohibits tax-exempt groups from engaging in political activities; bans using the franking privilege for mass mailings during an election year; strengthens election fraud laws; prohibits bundling of contributions; provides new standards for jerryandering in congressional districts; mandates disclosure of independent expenditures; constricts the millionaires' loopholes; Federal activities by State PAC's created by Members of Congress; and promotes political competition, while allowing political parties to provide challengers with seed money to get their campaigns off the ground.

Madam President, the Comprehensive Campaign Reform Act would restore integrity and competitiveness to our electoral process while preserving constitutional rights and our 200-year-old democratic freedoms.

Last year we saw considerable progress on this issue as the Senate engaged in a spirited floor debate, during which several amendments were voted on. Regrettably, partisan politics prevailed, and the Senate passed a bill the President had said in advance he would veto. The House and Senate conferees never even met. The issue fell by the wayside as Congress turned to other more important matters.

Nevertheless, I was encouraged by the substantive debate, and I believe it set the stage for passage of a bill in this coming Congress, a bill that both sides of the aisle could agree on, and that the President would sign, and that would serve the interests of the American people.

We have before us an historic opportunity, a great responsibility. Short of amending the Constitution, nothing we can do will have a more profound effect on our democratic system than changing the laws governing the electoral process. Some of the laws we have passed in this area have had troublesome and even disastrous consequences. For example, the last reform package, promoted by Common Cause, created PAC's. Now most everyone, including Common Cause, thinks we should eliminate PAC's.

Contribution limits have the positive effect of pushing out the fat cats, but they also make it a lot more time-consuming to raise campaign funds.

Presidential spending limits, which the other side wants to impose, have created a regulator's nightmare and a lawyer's paradise. No one obeys the law, and new loopholes are discovered every election.

The current broadcast discount law that has been in place for 20 years was intended to reduce the costs of campaigns. Quite the opposite was the effect. A loophole allowed the establishment of different classes of time. The candidates must now purchase the most expensive class of time, so campaign costs, and consequently spending, increased dramatically. These are instances where even the most well-intentioned attempts at reform, in practice, distorted the practices.

Spending limits, once again, are the centerpiece of the majority party's campaign finance proposal. Such arbitrary limits would seriously deform the electoral process. I will not delve into that debate at this time. I refer my colleagues, staff, and observers to the August 1, 1990, Congressional Record, page

S 11622, where to some length I discussed spending limits and cited the views of noted scholars in the field.

Realistically, we must recognize that campaign finance is a partisan issue. That was evident in past actions by both parties and the partisan split on many of the votes during last year's debate. The laws could be altered to favor one party over another. It does not necessarily follow, however, that we must do it that way. Nor must we deadlock over this issue. We could start out working from the areas where we agree.

Last year both the Republican and Democratic bills banned PAC's. Both bills provided a broadcast discount. While I believe we can find more areas of agreement, just these two would go a long way toward lowering the costs of campaigns and addressing the real scandal, which is special interest sources of campaign funds. The principal problem and concern of the American people is not how much money candidates spend. Most of campaign spending is to communicate with voters. The problem is where the money comes from. Therein lies the potential for corruption, both real and perceived. Constituents, understandably, do not like it that so much of our campaign funds come from PAC's the personification of special interest influence. Constituents do not like it that so much of their representatives' campaign funds come from out of State. We can address these by banning PAC's and by adjusting the contribution limits for individuals who are not constituents. The Comprehensive Campaign Finance Reform Act does just that. We must not allow meaningful campaign finance reform to be blocked by a single provision in the bill. No single provision is the be all or end all of reform.

I propose that we take these provisions we can agree on and pass a bill to ensure the integrity of our electoral process and restore confidence in government. The American people and our soldiers in the Persian Gulf and the world are looking to us for leadership in a very difficult time. We need to get our own house in order. With the confidence and support of the American people, we will be better able to get about the business of achieving enduring peace and prosperity.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent at this point that the bill in its entirety appear in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

TITLE III—REDUCTION OF CAMPAIGN COSTS

SEC. 301. BROADCAST DISCOUNT.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) in the 45 days preceding a primary election, and in the 60 days preceding a general election, candidates for political office need to be able to buy, at the lowest unit charge, nonpreemptible advertising spots from broadcast stations and cable television stations to ensure that their messages reach the intended audience and that the voting public has an opportunity to make informed decisions;

(2) since the Communications Act of 1934 was amended in 1972 to guarantee the lowest unit charge for candidates during these important preelection periods, the method by which advertising spots are sold in the broadcast and cable industries has changed significantly;

(3) changes in the method for selling advertising spots have made the interpretation and enforcement of the lowest unit charge provision difficult and complex;

(4) clarification and simplification of the lowest unit charge provision in the Communications Act of 1934 is necessary to ensure compliance with the original intent of the provision; and

(5) in granting discounts and setting charges for advertising time, broadcasters and cable operators should treat candidates for political office at least as well as the most favored commercial advertisers.

(b) AMENDMENT OF COMMUNICATIONS ACT.—Section 315 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 315) is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)(1), by striking "class and";

(2) by redesignating subsections (c) and (d) as subsections (d) and (e), respectively; and

• Mr. PACKWOOD. Mr. President, I rise today to once again join with my colleagues in introducing a very far-reaching, comprehensive campaign finance reform bill. This measure, the subject of extensive debate in the last Congress as well, goes farther than any other reform proposal we've had before us. It achieves what I believe should be the goals of campaign finance reform. As I have stated here on more than one occasion, I believe those goals to be twofold.

First, if the perception is that PAC's are an evil, then ban PAC contributions altogether. If the special interest spending is troublesome, and more and more people across the Nation seem to think it is, then we can do something about it. That something is, in my view, doing away with PAC contributions. Whatever may have been the public perception of campaign financing in the past, there is today widespread feeling that elections are principally financed by groups who have a very narrow interest as opposed to a broad public interest. In a democracy, the public must perceive the law to be fair or confidence is severely undermined. The obvious way to respond to the growing perception that Members of Congress are bought and paid for by the special interests is to eliminate all PAC contributions—corporate, labor, trade association, and independent. The bill we are introducing today does this.

Second, any campaign finance reform bill should encourage massive participation in campaigns. You don't accomplish this with expenditure limits. Such limits simply drive a candidate to raise money in the least expensive, quickest way possible and with the least effort. The candidate contacts a minimal number of contributors who are able to give the largest amount until the contribution limits are reached. I don't think this is what we
